

Taking the intricate hexagonal matrixes of the honeycomb as its inspiration, the latest collection from British jewellery brand Bouton will be on show at Cannes, featuring an array of earrings, rings, bracelets and pendants.

Crafted using Bouton's signature micro-pavé setting technique along with premium sterling silver and the finest simulated precious stones, the Honeycomb collection includes contemporary and statement pieces that will, say the brand, last a lifetime.

A pair of glamorous long drop earrings (pictured above) features a delicately intertwined cluster of diamante hexagons, while the matching cuff (left) boasts a simulated stone embellished clasp for added wow-factor.

The new Bouton range is offered at prices ranging from £85 £1500 and comes with a two-year warranty as standard.
